IIRSM Safety Leadership

Description

Whatever your job title, if you are the one that heads turn to when there's a safety-critical decision to be made, then this course is for you.

We assume that you already know the rules and systems that your organisation has for making sure people are safe. This is a day for you to think about your team's challenges, and to explore some simple methods to boost your safety leadership.

The 1-day course is designed to be highly interactive, using a mixture of examples, videos and facilitated workshops to provide you with the ability to develop a personal leadership plan

Aims

During this session you will identify some of the challenges to the safety of your teams and learn some simple methods to enhance your own safety leadership

Objectives

You will:

- Identify your legal responsibilities
- Learn how to communicate about risk
- Explore how your leadership can drive the safety of those around you
- Reflect on your own safety values and what they mean
- Focus on one particular safe behaviour that you would like to enhance
- Consider how to measure safety performance

Duration 1 day

Modules

- What safety means for your team (what it is, what it looks like, where we want to be and what our challenges are) and how to make it easy to do the right thing)
- Measuring success
- Leading safely (Understanding behaviours)
